Common Good Farm

Common Good Farm, located in Raymond, Nebraska, is owned and operated by Ruth Chantry and Evrett Lunquist.

Common Good Farm is a certified organic and Biodynamic farm featuring a CSA, as well as pastured pork, grass-fed beef, organic pastured eggs, produce, garlic, herbs, and as well as annual organic plant sale each spring. The CSA options include a 12 week summer season CSA and a separate fall harvest CSA share. We also offer tours and workshops throughout the year. Coming up May 26 is a "Birding on the Farm" workshop, highlighting bird species as part of whole farm organism. More info and registration info can be found at www.commongoodfarm.com. We also have an annual "Farm Social" in October and a Holly Jolly Farm Market in December on the farm. Some of the aspects of farming the way they do that are important to us are community, food security, health, taste and working with Nature.

Common Good Farm has been producing local food for more than 16 years now and has been a member of Buy Fresh Buy Local Nebraska since BFBL's inception (more than 6 years ago).

Ruth was on the founding committee that began BFBLN when she was working for Nebraska Sustainable Ag Society as outreach coordinator. Elaine Cranford, as a key partner, was on the board of NSAS, as well as working for Nebraska Cooperative Development Center (still does), this joint effort between the two organizations was vital to getting BFBLN going, in conjunction with great assistance from other organizational, business and community members that had an interest in BFBL starting here.

Common Good Farm chose to become a member of BFLN because:
[BFBLN] has lovely display materials, the Local Food Guide and we were founding organizers. The [BFBLN] materials have helped promote the farm to a broader audience that pick up the food guide or see [Common Good Farm] info on the [BFBLN]website.
