Criteria for Farmers' Market Membership

Each member pays an annual licensing fee and signs the agreement that lists the terms of participation.

To be eligible you must:

• Be located in the state of Nebraska with the majority of vendors from Nebraska

•Have a no brokering or limited brokering policy in effect for the market to demonstrate a commitment to local foods

•You can use BFBLN materials to only promote your market/s. Vendors must join individually to use signage and point of purchase materials

Membership Fees

BFBLN program is committed to the support of our unique foodshed and our Farmers' Market Members.

BFBLN program is a membership based program of family farms, farmers' markets and locally owned businesses that support local food systems.

Fees are based on the number of vendors attending each of your markets:

1-10 Vendors:	$40
11-20 Vendors:	$100
21+ Vendors:	$150

Testimonial

"Wenninghoff's Farmers' Market

(We chose to become a member of BFBLN) To enhance our farm's exposure to people who want food directly from the farmer (and) also to increase awareness about our CSA. As the population has shifted from rural to urban development, many consumers have forgotten where their food comes from. They forgot that it grows in fields instead of in the supermarket. BFBLN has helped the consumer remember to not take food for granted. BFBL has helped the consumer connect with the farmer and understand more of what is involved in getting the food to the table.

Testimonials

Wayne Farmers' Market

We wanted access to the information and marketing available, and in turn wanted support the work of BFBLN. BFBLN presented at the Farmers Market Moms seminar in Wayne and that added credibility to what we were trying to establish with the Wayne Farmers Market. It also helps with promoting our market, educating our vendor/farmers and connecting us with other market events across the state.

–Irene Fletcher, manager

University Place Farmers Market

We felt as though BFBLN's focus on local growers fit very well with our goal of trying to develop a community market that encourages neighborhood residents to sell and purchase locally grown/made products. The information provided by BFBLN has been useful as we plan the most effective market we can. I believe that they will be a useful resource as our market grows and develops!

-Malinda Burk, manager
